

ONCE IN EACH LIFE (words and music by Gary K. Glading)

Once in each life, there comes along,
A love that's so bright, a love that's so strong
You know that it's right, how can it be wrong,
When safe in his arms is where you belong?

Just like an echo, out of the past
It all seems familiar, this love must last.
It's written somewhere, in stars up above,
Your destiny waits, and its name is love.

Days soon become weeks
Warm springs turn into summers
And you continue to grow.
Trials and heartaches
Just serve to make you stronger
For true love is something you know.

Once in each life, there comes along
A love that's so bright, a love that's so strong
Yet there'll come a time, when lovers must part
You've known all along, you've known from the start.

When all the leaves fall
And autumn follows summer
And you are standing alone.
Memories of sunlight
And memories of a shared love
Will keep you warm when cold winds moan.

Always remember the sunshine
Remember all the laughter
The light that shone deep in his eyes
Remember that he'll be there
Waiting in the starlight
To welcome you back to his side.
